Program Overview

— WHO THIS IS FOR

Built for operators accountable for growth.

If you're leading Commercial Excellence, Strategy, or Transformation in a $1B+ business, you're expected to produce CFO-validated impact. Typically, you're in one of two situations.

Situation 1 • New to the role

You've just stepped into the role — maybe inheriting a half-finished plan, cleaning up the mess a predecessor left behind, or starting from a blank slate. Either way, you have to chart the path forward.

And your commercial leaders are already change-fatigued. You can hear them thinking:

"Here we go again. Another one of these."

You're on the clock to prove this round is different — and that it will stick.

Situation 2 • In motion

You've got programs in motion — initiatives launched and momentum building. But adoption is uneven, and the pace isn't yet what it should be.

Now the goal is speed. Accelerate by removing resistance and igniting the intrinsic motivation that makes change stick.

"How much faster could we move if my people adapted to change more easily?"

That's the opportunity — change that sticks because people want it.

EITHER WAY, WHAT YOU NEED IS THE SAME

You're accountable for commercial impact the CFO and board can see. The Fellowship™ doesn't add another program — it helps you accelerate the transformation by removing resistance, igniting intrinsic motivation, and proving the impact you're accountable for.

If that's not your situation,
the Fellowship isn't built for you.

THE REAL CHALLENGE

You lead Commercial Excellence, Strategy, or Transformation at a billion-dollar business. You already know how to win.

The question isn't whether you can. It's how fast your people can adapt.

Strategy sets the direction — your people close the gap. How quickly they adopt the change is what decides the pace.

Most programs keep them busy; few make change easier to take on.

Initiatives launch — adoption lags behind.

Teams stay busy — the change doesn't stick.

Effort runs high — the pace of impact doesn't.

The problem isn't defiance — it's passive resistance: the hidden drag that slows change and limits growth.

WHAT DECIDES THE PACE

It isn't ability.
It's how fast people adapt.

You're accountable for the outcome — but you lead through influence, not direct authority.

The work is making change easier to adopt: removing resistance, igniting intrinsic motivation, and turning effort into measurable impact.

Do that, and transformation accelerates — and the impact shows up sooner.

Rapidly convert challenges into successful outcomes.

CORE CHALLENGES

What may be slowing you down.

- Change-fatigued teams — “here we go again” — worn down by rollouts that asked a lot and changed little.
- Passive resistance — people nod in the room, then revert the moment the meeting ends.
- Inherited programs that stall in the field — polished on paper, ignored in practice.
- Accountable, but leading through influence, not authority — you own the number without owning the teams.
- You’re winning — but not fast enough — and the clock the board is watching keeps running.
- Proving impact and ROI in ComEx — you drive growth across the business units you support, but can’t take direct credit for it.

DESIRED OUTCOMES

What the Fellowship helps you deliver.

- ✓ Transformation that moves at pace — and sticks long after the program ends.
- ✓ Adaptive capacity measured — and raised, so you can show the mindset shift, not just activity.
- ✓ Board credibility and an expanded mandate — the standing to lead the next initiative.
- ✓ Faster, measurable time-to-impact — results that show up in quarters, not years.
- ✓ The career capital of the leader who made it stick — known as the one who delivered.
- ✓ A competitive advantage in mental toughness, resilience, and grit across the commercial organization.

Consistent execution depends on three things:
intrinsic motivation, adaptability, and resilience.

The real lever is your people's adaptive capacity.

Closing the gap isn't a planning problem. Plans, systems, and information don't produce results. People do. Knowing what to do is the easy part; doing it consistently, under adversity, at scale is the part that breaks.

NEARLY 8 in 10

people admit they're not very adaptable or resilient — yet organizations keep pushing change into them, without equipping them to handle it.

That capacity has a name and a measure: adaptive capacity — Adversity Quotient (AQ®) and GRIT™. It improves with coaching, and it's the first thing the Fellowship measures.

6.2x

higher innovation and engagement when support, psychological safety, resilience, and adaptability converge.

16%

of employers invest in adaptability at all — the capacity that decides the race is the one almost nobody builds.

Adaptability can be measured — and it can be rapidly improved.

THE OPERATOR WHO BUILT THIS

Roy van Griensven

Operator-Coach-In-Residence

Roy ran the Commercial Excellence portfolio at a €7B global specialty-chemicals company — promoted to Head of Business Transformation on the back of this proof case. Today he coaches Fellowship members on the build, operator to operator.

Under real financial pressure, he inherited a fully built upskilling program from a top-tier strategy firm — academically correct, beautifully designed.

He scrapped it within two months.

Risky — and it paid off. He rebuilt the Commercial Excellence Academy™ around three things:

- Intrinsic motivation that clears passive resistance
- Real commercial challenges and opportunities
- 90-day Growth Projects™, coached by industry veterans — not consultants

GROWTH PROJECTS™

What predicts performance when the pressure is on.

The behavioral science under our method was developed by Dr. Paul Stoltz over four decades. Two measures — AQ® and GRIT™ — consistently out-predict IQ and EQ for sustained performance under adversity.

Adversity Quotient (AQ®)

Your hardwired pattern of response to adversity.

AQ® measures how you interpret and respond to setbacks — the single most reliable predictor of who adapts, persists, and performs when conditions get hard.

High-AQ people treat adversity as fuel; low-AQ people treat it as a reason to stop. The pattern is measurable, trainable, and visible inside 90 days.

3,500+ peer-reviewed studies · 110 universities · 137 countries

GRIT™

Your capacity to dig deep for what matters most.

GRIT measures growth, resilience, instinct, and tenacity — the capacity to do whatever it takes, in the right ways, to achieve what matters.

People with high GRIT set more challenging goals — and achieve a higher percentage of them.

Mental toughness, adaptability, and resilience when the pressure is on.

THE SOURCE

Dr. Paul G. Stoltz is the originator of both AQ® and GRIT™ and the world's leading authority on human adaptability, resilience, and performance under adversity.
